BETTER THAN THE PANAMA ROUTE

Natural Advantages of the Nicaragna Canal.

Public Opinion in the Far South Concerning American Enterprise.

Reported Deal of an American Syndicate With the Colombian Govern-

Frederick Leslie Rockwood, of Bogota, United States of Colombia, is at the Hamilton. Mr. Rockwood is the South American representative of several firms of American manufacturers. He speaks interestingly of public opinion in the far South concerning American enterprise, In the course of a conversation today with a Times reporter, Mr. Rockwood

"It has been very interesting to hear their opinions of us and especially of the building of the Nicaragua or Panama Canal. It must be remembered that they send many of their children to Europe to be educated and their money to be kept for security against the revolutions to which they are subject. Besides the people at home are constantly being educated by the European commercial interests, which are antagonistic to us and verything we do.

"Outside of Colombia the South American countries are indifferent as to which is built, the Panama or Nicaragua Canal, is built, the Pamama or Nicaragua Canal, but it was openly talked in the streets of Bogota, the capital of Colombia, that a large American syndicate had made a deal with the Colombian government and the French Canal Company to take up the French concession, which expires in about two years, the Colombian government having refused to extend it twelve years, as was asked.

"The Europsgan traders there say the

"The European traders there say the Nicaragua route will be better than the Panama route for us, as the Americans would have to pay for the antiquated machinery and for the work done, which will have to be done over again, and be-ing farther from home they will not be ing farther from home they will not be benefited so much nor so well able to protect it. It is often openly said that Europe will combine some day to knock the young Yankee bully out.

"During the past seven years I have been over both romes and personally investigated them to make a practical comparison and to see what I then felt would become a work of national interest. I found the Panama route, as far as made, a muddy ditch, too narrow for the dredgers to pass each other in most of places, with a mountain to cut through and cuts across a river.

"There would have to be 45 miles of cutting and dredging and four locks, while at Nicaragua I found there would while at Nicaragua I found there would be but 26 miles of cutting, with four locks, and no mountains to cut through. The Nicaragua route has two great inland seas which never rise nor fall but a few inches, the grandest kind of reservoir known. From a disinterested standpoint the Nicaragua route offers many advantages. "The banks of the canal may be reach-ed by a railroad now more than half, built that will connect it with the United States by way of the city of Mexico and Guatemala, developing our trade through States by way of the city of access of an email of the distribution. It is well known that the Tehuantepec Railroad scheme, which is backed by one of the great railroad companies, would fall through if the Nicar-"The Panama route would be preferable them, being farthest from the Unite States. Every manufacturing interest ought to bear in mind that the opening of the Nicaragua Canal route will give at impetus to our foreign trade, and all the field from Mexico to the canal will be de-

Berlin, Dec. 21.-The North German Gazette yesterday referred to Senator Mason's resolution in the United States Senate yesterday, directing the Commitsee on Agriculture to Inquire into certain legislation pending before the Reichstag, calculated to prohibit the importation ino Germany of American sausages and other meat products, and directing the committee, should the measure become law, to report immediately a bill to require the inspection of sugars, meats, wines and all other food products which are imported into the United States from Germany, and also referring to the agricultural bill introduced in the House of

OLD SAWS.

Old Proverbs Don't Always Hold Good.

"Old saws are sometimes broker man convinced against his will is of his own opinion still." I have seen that badly smashed. A friend came in to see maily smasned. A friend came in to see me some time ago while I was in bed with nervous prostration. The physician had strictly forbidden me to use coffee, and I had tried a little Postum Cereal Food Coffee, but the way was served, it tasted so flat that I proke the rules of the doctor and occas-onally drank a cup of coffee, although such time I suffered for it. During her conversation, she asked me why I didn't try Postum. "Oh," I said, "I have tried that, but it's no use, I can't drink it." She laughed out loud and said, "Why, my dear, you have been imposed upon.

If you once have Postum made right, you will be in love with it from that time ou." I listened to her with little interest and much incredulity, but she kept on in-

Shortly after, when I recovered a little I was visiting a friend's house, who asked me if I would like a cup of Postum, and when it was served, it tasted no better than mine had, so you see I had, apparently, a most thorough experience with the taste of Postum, and I knew its taste to be decidedly flat and insipid.

However, I found for the good of my health, I must drink it, and so when I got home and was a little stronger, I de-termined to see if it could not be made to taste better. I looked at the package carefully and found that the directions were very plain, that the Postum must be allowed actual boiling of at least fif-teen minutes. I put it on in cold water. It took about fifteen minutes before it commenced to boil, then I allowed it to bubble and boll fifteen minutes more, and after it had settled, I poured out a cup which certainly was as rich a dark brown cup of coffee as I ever saw in my life, and when cream and suger were added, I was amazed at the taste. "Eureka," I had found what I wanted. From that time on you can imagine I knew that time on you can imagine I knew to a certainty when it was served at the table, whether Postum had been boiled long enough or not. There is as much difference as between night and day Pos-tum underboiled is flat, and boiled as it should be, is one of the most delicious Congress from the Nineteenth district, strange that people try and try again, and make Postum in so slovenly a manner that they fail to get the delicious flavor from it. I, of course, have no temptation to go back to common coffee, for I have the finest coffee twice a day, and they fail it safe, pleasant, healthful, and they fail it safe, pleasant, healthful, and strengthening to the nerves.

she has been sleeping ever since.

The parents of the girl say that when the girl was ten years old she fell asleep one day and slept twenty-four hours. After all simple remedies had failed, the physicians tried an electric battery on the sleeper. When the current was first turned on there was a twitching of the eyelids. Then the eyes opened and Sadle was apparently awakened, but not consciously so. Her parents spoke to her, and by movements of the eyes she made it evident that she understood what was going on. The electric battery was used for some time, but after a while the girl dropshe has been sleeping ever since. ing on. The electric battery was used in some time, but after a while the girl dropped off to sleep again as suddenly as she did last week at her school desk.

People from surrounding villages are flocking to the Wright house to see the sleeping girl.

SHAME LED CHARLES HERBEST TO SUICIDE

PARENT TALKED OF ARREST

the Lad Drank Carbolic Acid.

Father Is Nearly Crazed With Grief. New York, Dec. 21.-Remorse and fear of imprisonment drove Charles Herbst nineteen years old, to end his life by taking carbolic acid at his home, No. 41 First Avenue, last evening. The boy confessed to his father that he had stolen $ from his employers. His father told them of the theft. They were willing to take the boy back and deduct the stolen morey from his wages. For some reason-probably shame-the boy refused to accept the terms offered, and would not face his employers. This angered his father, and he told his son that his employers would arrest him and lock him up. Sooner than suffer this dis to lock him up.

George Herbst, the father, is a cigarmaker. His wife and several children ere in Germany. He is trying to accumulate enough money to bring them to this country. For this reason he was anxious to add what he could of the earnings of both himself and son to a bank fund for that purpose.

Charles was small for his age, Some time ago he got employment as an errand boy with the Decorative Plant Company. They paid him $4 a week. Charles' father would allow him out of his wage only $1 a week. Of course, Charles had no trouble in spending that amount long before each pay day. He often demanded more money of his father. Sometimes he got it, but more frequently he did not. The father generally scoided him and called him a "spendthrift." The son re-sented this, and declared that a boy of his age ought to have all his wages. The consequence was that the father and son had constant quarrels over money matters. Charles brought home his wages, as sual, last Saturday night and gave them his father. The latter gave him 75 cents ind refused to give him more on his de manding it. They had a violent quarrel, in which Charles threatened to leave home if he could not get what he wanted. It was for the purpose of improving his appearance that Charles wanted more opey. He had recently met a fair eas side maiden, and he fancied that his clothes were of the "shabby genteel" or-der. His derby hat was old and covered with dents. He thought he needed a new umbrella, too. On going to work Monday morning Charles was sent out to make ome collections. When he turned in his ney he retained $3 of it. This he used up in the purchase of a hat and an um-brella. Going home, he informed his fathof his theft, and the latter flew into a terrible rage.

The father denounced him as a thief nd spendthrift. Charles retorted that his father had driven him to steal by his pe-uriousness. Charles declared he would not work any more at all until the father promised to give aim more of his earnings. He re-fused to go to the Decorative Plant Company's place yesterday morning. The fa-ther went there and told them of the son's theft. His employers said he was the best boy they ever had and told the father that they would take Charles back ather that they would take Charles and deduct the $3 from his wages. "I will never go back there." Charles said when his father informed him of the ofter of his employers. "I would be ashamed to look them in the face again ashamed to look them in the face again after what I have done."

His father then berated him soundly, and told him that the members of the firm would arrest him if he did not go back to work or repay them their money. Charles then left the house in a sullen and remorseful mood. He returned several hours later at 6 o'clock. His father was asleep in a back bedroom.

Taking off his clothes Charles lay down on a lounge in the front room. Then he drank the contents of a bottle of carbolic acid. Suffering from the effects he was arraigned in the police court this morning charged with cruelty to animals by the Society for the Prevention of Cru-elty to Animals. Signor Panello is the owner of a South American monkey. This particular specimen of the ring tail tribe is used by the scion of sunny Italy to collect the various dimes, nickels and pennies coaxed from the pockets of lovers of barrel organ melody. Panello, it appeared, allowed the Simian to go minus footwear during the recent snow storm. The Socie-ty for the Prevention of Cruelty to Ani-mals thought this constituted cruelty, but Judge Scott ruled otherwise and Panello and his monkey were let close upon a suf-fering public.
